

How to play bunco

- Hand bell
- Set of 3 die at each table
- Scorecards for every player to keep track of wins, losses, etc.
- Bunko Bunny (or other designated soft prop)

A game consists of 6 rounds (1's thru 6's). First round you roll for 1's, second round 2's, etc. The OBJECTIVE is for you & your partner (the person sitting across from you) to roll more of that round's number than the other team in the round. A team wins a round by scoring 21 points.

Assign a person at each table to keep score. Use a scratch pad that says US and THEM; the scorekeeper will keep track of the scores as the people roll the dice. Remember that the people playing across from each other are partners and their scores are added together.

To begin - someone rings the bell. All tables begin rolling for that rounds number. Play rotates from player to player clockwise after a player does not roll that rounds number on any of the 3 die or a birdie (3 of the same die but NOT the round you are playing) or a Bunco (3 of the same die the round you are playing). If you roll that round's number on any one of the 3 die you continue rolling until you don't.

Scoring:

- 1 point for each number of that round's die that were rolled. For example in round 1, each time you roll the dice with a 1 showing, you get a point.
- 5 points for 3 of a kind but not the round you are playing. For example in round 1, if you roll 3 fives, you get 5 points. SCOREKEEPER: record each time a team gets a birdie.
- 21 points for a BUNCO. For example, in round 1, if you roll 3 one's – that is a BUNCO and you win that round. SCOREKEEPER: record each time a team gets BUNCO. You could have a Bunko Bunny (or other gag prize) that travels to each person as they get a BUNCO. The last person holding the Bunko Bunny gets the prize.

As soon as a team 21 points (WINNERS), the round is over and they ring the bell ending the round for EVERYONE. Each person playing records her score from the round, indicating whether they won or lost and how many birdies or buncos were scored.

The LOSING team move to the next table and change partners. You cannot have the same partner twice in a row. So switch when you switch tables.

After each round you put a W(win) or L(loss) by the appropriate place on the bunk score sheet. Every time you get a bunko or Birdie put a hash mark on your scorecard. In the end each person totals up their wins, losses, buncos and birdies.
